Janey Way Memories:

The Perfect Cat

By MARTY RELLES

At our house, we have the perfect cat. When we got her at age six weeks, she was a puff of white cotton with brown feet and tail and a little dark face: perfect Siamese markings. We proudly named her Sophie.

As she aged though, she lost some of her

Her tail began to reflect faint white rings. One foot remained brown while another turned black and the others mottled.

When I took her to the SPCA for spaying, they noted "short hair/Siamese mix" on her medical record. Oh well, maybe she wasn't so However, she did retain her piercing blue eyes. She is smart too.

At daybreak, when she is ready for breakfast, she jumps on the bed and talks to me, until I feed her. She runs our house.

She reminds me of another perfect cat I once owned on Janey Way. He came as a gift too.

One day, I went with my big sister to the house of a married couple she knew. We sat in their living room, drinking coffee, surrounded by a litter of seal point Siamese kittens. They were so beautiful that I walked over and picked one up. It surprised me. It didn't squirm or scratch or cry. It just purred.

Then its owner asked me, "Would you like to have him." I said, "for sure."

One time, he got into a fight with a squirrel behind Dom Costamagna's house. It caused his leg to become infected. Dad took him to the vet, at no small cost, and he soon returned to perfect health. Dad loved Sinbad.

Sadly though, we ultimately lost Sinbad. We let him out to play one night, and he never returned. We hoped someone just took him home with them, but you never know. He just disappeared.

*The initial Annual Percentage Rate (APR) is currently 4.25% for a new Home Equity Line of Credit (HELOC), and is fixed for the first 5 years of the loan which is called the draw period. After the initial 5 year period, the APR can change once based on the value of an Index and Margin. The Index is the weekly average yield on U.S. Treasury Securities adjusted to a constant maturity of 10 years and the margin is 3.50%. The current APR for the repayment period is 5.75%. The maximum APR that can apply any time during your HELOC is 10%. A qualifying transaction consists of the following conditions: (1) the initial APR assumes a maximum HELOC of $100,000, and a total maximum Loan-to-Value (LTV) of 70% including the new HELOC and any existing 1st Deed of Trust loan on your residence; (2) your primary residence; (3) if the 1st Deed of Trust loan is with a lender other than El Dorado Savings Bank, that loan may not exceed $200,000 and may not be a revolving line of credit. Additional property restrictions and requirements apply. All loans are subject to a current appraisal. Property insurance is required and flood insurance may be required. Rates, APR, terms and conditions are subject to change without notice. Other conditions apply. A $375 early closure fee will be assessed if the line of credit is closed within three years from the date of opening. An annual fee of $50 will be assessed on the first anniversary of the HELOC and annually thereafter during the draw period. Ask for a copy of our "Fixed Rate Home Equity Line of Credit Disclosure Notice" for additional important information. Other HELOC loans are available under different terms.

SMUD's history began through local voters' approval in 1923

By LANCE ARMSTRONG

Editor's Note: This is part one of a two-part series about the Šacramento Municipal Utility District. Part two of the series will feature details regarding the renovation of East Sacramento's SMUD headquarters building.

For well more than six decades, the Sacramento Municipal Utility District has been serving the electricity needs of residents of Sacramento and beyond.

Presently, SMUD serves all of Sacramento County and a small portion of Placer County.

The company recently made news when it was reported that its more than half-century-old headquarters building at 6201 S St. in East Sacramento would undergo a $100 million renovation.

That project, albeit one of the major projects of the dis-

On that day, 87 percent of voters approved a $12 million bond issue for the creation of SMUD.

Additionally, a five-member board of directors was elected to serve a one-year term. Those original directors were Mayor Albert Elkus, Judge C.E. McLaughlin, George L. Herndon, Robert L. Jones and Ben Leonard.

In 1921, The Sacramento Union had published the following words: "It has been very definitely proved that municipalities can provide their own power and light at a cost considerably below the rate charged by private hydroelectric companies."

During the same year, efforts to establish a community owned electric distribution system and water and power rights on Silver Creek in El Dorado County were investigated by SMUD representatives.

The district's original service areas were the cities of Sacramento and North Sacramento and adjacent territory of approximately 48,000 acres or 75 square miles.

SMUD's early history also included the expansion of its service area from 48,000 acres to 420,000 acres, with the inclusion of the communities of Elverta, Rio Linda, Elk Grove and Herald.

An article in the Dec. 29, of its early years, as follows: "SMUD had been created by voters in 1923. But it took most of the intervening 23 years to win independence from (the Pacific Gas and Electric Co.), which was loathe to relinquish the territory. "In fact, for several years, even after the 1946 takeover (of PG&E), SMUD was a captive of PG&E. It bought most of its power from the big private utility until 1952, when it won an allotment from the federal Central Valley Proj-

Regarding the change from private to public distribution and sale of electricity, The Bee, in its December 31, 1946 edition, notes: "It would have to have become disheartened and to have given up. But they kept tenaciously at their task and saw it through. And for that they deserve the thanks of the entire community."

That night, at 6 p.m., the Sacramento area's power distribution facilities formalpassed from PG&E to ŚMUD, and Sacramento became the nation's seventh largest city to obtain its electric service from a publicly owned power system.

At that time, SMUD was operating in rented rooms at 1325 K St. and in tin Quonset huts at the present 59th Street site.

scribes the change in the usage of electricity in Sacramento homes from the end of World War II to the beginning of the 1960s, as follows: "In 1945, many homes been easy during the long in Sacramento and outlying fight for (SMUD's) directors areas were lit by kerosene or purpose of constructing its gas lamps and kept warm by wood stoves. But by 1960, the average Sacramento home not only had electric service - it had become a veritable electricity consumption center. Sacramentans had bought electric ranges, central heating, electric washers, dryers and dishwashers, and a remarkable range of small electrical appliances, from waffle irons and griddles to electric blankets and bathroom space > heaters." In 1949, SMUD relocated its headquarters and offices into the then-recently remodeled, former Northern Motor Co. building at 2101 K St.

The 1949 city directory lists SMUD as then having its administrative and general offices at 2101 K St. and its operating headquarters at 59th and R streets.

During the late 1950s, SMUD began to build its own hydroelectric power plants on the upper American River, and by 1961, the company had lowered its electricitv rates three times.

SMUD's aforementioned headquarters building in East Sacramento opened in 1960.

In 1966, the company purchased 2,100 acres in Herald, in southeast Sacramento County, for the once controversial Rancho Seco nuclear power plant. The plant was built from 1969 to 1974.

Fifteen years later, Rancho Seco – Spanish for "dry ranch" was permanently closed following a public vote to have the place decommissioned.

During those years, the Arab oil embargo led to an energy crisis in this country, and the federal government requested that Americans limit their energy consumption.

Furthermore, a major drought in Northern California in 1976 resulted in the drying out of SMUD's largest reservoir. Subsequently, its hydroelectric power output was decreased by 50 percent.

In response, SMUD's directors approved a comprehensive energy conservation program, which involved the input of its customers.

Folsom was annexed by SMUD from PG&E via a vote of that city's residents in 1984. The acquisition added

Furthermore, the booklet notes that SMUD employees were able to cut costs by $56 million, and avoid a tenth rate increase in eleven years.

The 2000s brought the Y2K bug concern that never actually became an issue and the state mandated deregulation of the electric utility industry, which resulted in shortages of power, rotating outages and an increase in wholesale energy costs.

River lessons:

Teachers never really know how lessons will follow students

By ELLEN COCHRANE

"My parents drilled river safety into us with one rule: Don't swim in the rivers."

On the first day of each school year, I pull out a laminated story from The Sacramento Bee. The picture shows a boy in a life vest and the story covers safety on the river. My tanned students, fresh from summer, eye the paper and pass it around. Then I tell my stories.

Many years ago my father took me aside to show me a small clipping from the paper. A young girl drowned in the American River. Her tries, but they are often not last name was Brown, and I sat behind her the prior year moving as ours. Many of my in school. ### "Why Do They Keep Coming to this Doctor?..."

(Who admits to curing no one)

Dear friend,

I've got to tell you something that I've never said out loud.

But, what I'm going to tell you makes so much sense that you'll probably get mad that no one told you this before.

I've been a doctor in this town for 15 years now. And, to this day I've never cured anyone. You may think that the word would get around and that no one would come to me anymore. The opposite is true. The more people who understand, the more people come to see me.

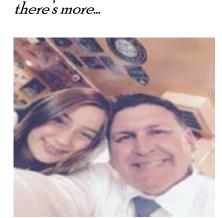

Several times a day patients thank me for helping them with their health problems. But can't really take the credit. I've never healed anyone of anything. What I do is perform a specific spinal adjustment to remove nerve pressure, and the body responds by healing itself. And, we get terrific results. That's why our office is filled with people that have found help nowhere else.

Let me tell you a little about me before I tell you about a terrific offer I have for you.

At the time, I was a 19 year old collegiate baseball player at Sacramento City College. I was suffering from terrible low back pain, hip pain, groin pain, constipation, as well as muscle spasms, and leg tingling! Rewind eight years earlier when the issues all began. I fell out of rafters in my neighbor's garage, crashing onto a ping-pong table face up, with my left leg dangling off the edge! Panicked with adrenalin flowing I made it home. The pain initially went away, but for gradually and progressively maintain their wellbeing! deteriorated until I had a massive flair up and could not stand up, walk, or breathe without excruciating pain! I was nineteen and terrified. After several "doctor" appointments and considering surgery, I decided against surgery. But,

A coach of mine convinces me to give his doctor a try. This new doctor does an exam, takes some films, and then 'adjusts' my spine (he tells me that there's pressure on the nerves in my back). The adjustment doesn't hurt, it actually feels good. I get relief, and shortly, I can move again! Oh, did I mention that this doctor is a chiropractor? Chiropractic works so well for me, and I'm so impressed with the other 'miracles' I see in his office, that I eventually go to chiropractic school muself. And that's how it happened!

Let me tell you about Angie my wife and our kids. A balance beam injury in gymnastics as a teenager, a snowmobile accident that fractured her spine as a young adult and having our three wonderful children took its toll on my wife's back! She has recovered from all these injuries and physical stress with the help of chiropractic adjustments! Now my wife and children get adjusted to optimize their

the next eight years my back physical capabilities

For the last 15 years, people from Sacramento and surrounding area have come to see me with their back problems. They also come to me with their:

- Headaches
- Migraines Chronic pain
- Neck Pain
- Shoulder/arm pain
- Whiplash from car accidents
- Backaches
- Numbness in limbs
- Athletic injuries just to name a few...

Here's what some of your neighbors had to say:

"I had lack of mobility, strength, and lack of bowel control. The meds did not work. Now, the back pain is sone, upper body strength is returning, and bowel function is normal!" (Corrine G. -Sacramento)

"My headaches have sone away. I have not had the need to take motrin, vicodin, and I am no longer taking flexeril. Thank you!"(Terri M.-Orangevale)

"Recently I enjoyed an amazing two week Alaskan vacation pain free! I was able to hike and explore ...I no longer suffer from chronic back pain and back and God Bless. (Dan freeze-ups". -Sacramento)

Exciting Offer -Look, I know P.S. When accompanied by the not just cover it up with drugs. same examination for only $17. When you are one of the first 20 people to call and schedule a PPS. Of course, all people new patient exam (by August respond differently to care. 20, 2015) you'll receive that entire exam for $67. and expect to be flooded with calls as this exam normally costs $282. Again, there's only 20 of these slots, so don't miss out (by law, this offer excludes Medicare/Medicaid beneficiaries).

> Great care at a great fee...Please, I hope that there's no misunderstanding about quality of care just because 1 have a lower exam fee. You'll get great care at a great fee. My qualifications...I have a degree in biology from the University of Tennessee in Knoxville, and a graduate of Palmer College of Chiropractic. I've entrusted to take care of tiny babies to pro athletes that you may know. I've been helping your neighbors in Sacramento since 2000. I just have that low exam fee to help more people who need care.

My assistant is Pam and she is a really great person. Our office is both friendly and warm and we try our best to make you feel at home. We have a wonderful service, at an exceptional fee. Our office is called Espinosa Family Chiropractic, and it is at 3330 Folsom Blvd (across the street from the 33rd Street Bistro) in East Sacramento. Our number phone 916-457-8825. #### Non-Profit Organization is Seeking Local Host Families for High School Exchange Students

ASSE International Student Exchange Programs (ASSE), in cooperation with your community high school, is looking for local families to host boys and girls between the ages of 15 to 18 from a variety of countries: Norway, Denmark, Spain, Italy, Japan, to name a few.

ASSE students are enthusiastic and excited to experience American culture while they practice their English. They also love to share their own culture and language with their host families. Host families welcome these students into their family, not as a guest, but as a family member, giving every one involved a rich cultural experience. The exchange students have pocket money for personal expenses and full health, accident and liability insurance. ASSE students are selected based on academics and personality, and host families can choose their student from a wide variety of backgrounds, countries and personal interests.

To become an ASSE Host Family or to find out how to become involved with ASSE in your community, please call 1-800-733-2773 or go to www.host.asse.com to begin your host family application. Students are eager to learn about their American host family, so begin the process of welcoming your new son or daughter today!

Nationally known clown to entertain children at McKinley Library's end of summer reading ice cream social

By MONICA STARK

It's not a typical visit to the library when Boswick the Clown checks in. Pumped up with excitement by children's librarians, the youngest readers sit eagerly waiting for the professional clown to start his routine. Coming to the McKinley Library on Tuesday, Aug. 18 all the way from his home in San Francisco, Boswick seems to have done it all in the clowning world. Having attended the competitive Ringling Brothers
Clown College, in which about 5,000

ous about the clown doing tricks inside the community rooms, Boswick has had people audition and only 50 get accepted and finally from that only 16 go on to perform in the circus, Boswick did it all in good company. Other famous Clown College alumni include Penn Gillette of Penn and Teller and Bill Irwin (a.k.a. Mr. Noodle from "Sesame Street"), one of Boswick's comedic heroes.

Inspired by Charlie Chaplain and old vaudeville acts, Boswick's routine includes a lot of slapstick and amazing tricks. He can balance a ladder on his face!

The ladder balance routine got Boswick to the second round of America's Got Talent, which led to a commercial for Nissan. Describing the gist of the commercial, Boswick said, "The car is driving by and there I am juggling and balancing a ladder and everything falls over when the car drives by. I've done this in a lot of places. I've been to Japan, the Philippines, all over."

Boswick first developed an interest in this skill of clowning at 9 years old; juggling, err destroying peaches, oranges and things. Self educating himself before he attended clown college, Boswick grew up loving libraries. "When I grew up there was no Internet. So, the way you learned about the skills, was to go to the library. I got books on magic, juggling. So, it's special to me to go to the library (to perform)."

Boswick's McKinley Library visit

it. Clowning for a "really long time," Boswick has been to Sacramento often and just this year additionally has performed at the Carmichael, Del Paso, Rancho Cordova and Rio Linda libraries.

Heavily promoted, Boswick's performances are usually well-attended. Giving due credit for his popularity at the libraries, Boswick said, "Children's librarians are rock stars among 5 year olds. They say, 'come see the clown" and they do. Coupled with their announcements and the random passersby curias many as 400 children watching a performance. In rural places in Monterey County, for instance, many of the children get picked up by buses to attend a Boswick show. "They turn out. Everyone turns out for those," he added.

The other day at the Del Paso branch was completely unexpected, however. With only about a dozen children there for the show, many of whom were older than his usual 4- to 6-year-old age group, the difference was great for the professional clown. "Kids were just wandering in. That was a kick. They were a lot older too, but I make them laugh. That is what clowns do. I never to get, but I am like, hey these guys got a special intimate show."

The number of those in the audience ultimately is irrelevant, as Boswick measures success by the laughter, Magidson, has two sons, Duncan, 21, which he undoubtedly receives from children and parents alike. "Five, 4, And, when you see kids laughing, it spreads to adults."

Growing up on Bugs Bunny, Boswick said he enjoyed the silly humor found in the cartoons, but also got the hidden adult jokes most children don't. Taking heed on that approach, the clown reserves some humor for adults in his routines. Even the most difficult ages to impress, those school age "snotty" go into stand-up comedy mode. They love it when you put them in their place. When you've been a performer for a long time, you're super intuitive. You can deal with it so fast at a point. I want to make people laugh. I don't want to insult people, but sometimes it's fun," he said.

Riding on the coattails of the reputation of the Ringling Bros., doors to various gigs have opened for Boswick. "For giving me my start and letting me do this, I am grateful. It was such a great place to be when I was starting out and I can always say that I worked for Ringling Bros."

Keeping in touch with his old clown college classmates has been facilitated by social media. "Facebook is awesome for that. There are groups, two of them – one from my year of clown college and we know each other so intimately. We post funny things. Then there's Ringly Bros. user groups. There's constantly funny stuff. There hasn't been that many people that have gone through this stuff." But recently, Boswick went to a reading with about 300 attendees all of whom seemed to appreciate the art of clowning around. "That was great. I was so at home. I know what kind of turnout I'm going never quite fit in, I was always uncomfortable in the world but to be around those people, this is my world. These are my people. I get the humor."

Boswick, whose real name is David and Dustin, 17 and a wife named Diane.

Now in college, Duncan appreciates and 3 year olds roll over on their sides. his father's career choice, but it wasn't always that way. "Duncan used to really like it when he was little. But, when he was in middle school and I would pick him up, I had to lay down in the seat and listen to the radio. That was the rule. My younger son goes to same high school (as Duncan did). I was picking him up from over night retreat and I was running late. I said I'll be there in 20 minutes. I have to take a shower. But he said, won't be his first Sacramento library vis-kids, Boswick seems to hold his own. "I 'no, come in the makeup." He was sitting at 601 Alhambra Blvd.

with a girl who asked what I do (for a living), then she asked, what's his name? The girl was a super fan."

While the announcement for the library visit states Boswick will not be wearing makeup, he said part of his routine is to put a little on his cheeks and nose during the show. "I put on mascara. Eyes are really important to any performer, especially a clown. I want my eyes to pop. It's really funny for the kids when I'm using mascara, and then I try to put on my hat and it keeps falling off. I'm trying to catch it, but I realize I don't have my clown nose."

You see, Boswick just wants to entertain the kids and have the adults have a good time and neighbors, Aug. 18 is your chance to see some quality clowning!

Coy Rene Granderson, Sr. sits in a corner book nook at Sacramento Avid Reader, signing books and visiting with friends and family. He is a large, attractive man with a sunshine smile that lights up as he talks with admirers. It's the beginning of summer and the heat is seeping into the bookstore. By his side is his youngest teen daughter who is drawing. Coy proudly introduces her and talks about her creativity.

Granderson has just published his first novel, Accounts of a Reporter, about an adventurous New York investigative reporter, Jamal Montgomery, who leaves his unfaithful, pregnant ex-wife Desiree and moves to Sacramento to start a new life. Wanting to forget the past, Jamal gets involved with drug lords, police corruption, love triangles, sexual encounters, and strippers. The story takes Jamal from Sacramento to Barcelona where...
