Freeport Boulevard gets art resurgence

By MONICA STARK

Cruising down Freeport it's hard not to notice two major pieces of public art – the "Balancing Act, Too" Tony Natsoulas sculpture that was saved from the wrecking ball at Downtown Plaza and a mural covering the side of the new location of Awesome Video, 4524 Freeport Blvd.

Gracing the mural are Princess Leia, Spiderman, the Enterprise from Star Trek, Pam Greer as the foxy Cleopatra, Herbie the Love Bug, Dirty Harry, the robot from Metropolis, King Kong, and Rocket from Guardians from the Galaxy.

"A labor of love" for muralist Shaun Burner the project took about three days to complete which was just in time for Halloween. "I feel like it's one of the last video stores I've known about. The fact they moved, people thought they closed down. When people saw us (he and his partner Franceska Gamez) do it, it put the store back on the map." Shaun even got a membership during the process.

As Franceska wrote on Facebook, "It's a fun one for sure. Awesome Video is one of the last video stores in town; we had to come support."

Shaun's brother, Chad Burner, a regular customer at Awesome Video and a nearby homeowner was told by store owner Maitu Bai about the desire for a mural on the side of the wall and naturally recommended his brother.

Speaking about the process of how the design for this particular mural came about, Shaun said when he was laying out the concept, he wanted to feature older films and keep the composition symmetrical by placing The Shining twins in the middle as a focus and putting Spiderman up in the top left corner as a balancing act. Using photo references from movie scenes during the painting process helped make the images true to the scenes.

Meanwhile up north on the boulevard, a celebration of the completion of Plaza Cervantes (2115 11th Ave. — think of it as the green space between Cafe Espresso and the old Crepe Escape) and the relocation of "Balancing Act, Too" by Tony Natsoulas was held on Monday morning. The life-sized bronze figure, "Balancing Balancing Act, Too.

Act Too" was originally located on K Street in downtown Sacramento, but was removed to accommodate the Golden 1 Center construction. The sculpture is now the center piece of a new plaza, Plaza Cervantes, constructed this fall on Freeport Boulevard next door to the soon-to-be-open Meet & Eat restaurant, a transformation from the ashes of the old Crepe Escape to a snazzy healthy food hangout.

Volunteers work to replant trees in William Land Park on last workday of the year

As the city has been full force cutting down 66 trees in William Land Park, members of the Land Park Volunteer Corps have been working with the Sacramento Tree Foundation to start the replanting process. Last Saturday's park work day was the last for this year and the start of a long replanting process.

Besides the regular volunteer corps, student volunteers from C.K. McClatchy High School helped out with the replanting efforts.

Now in its sixth year of existence, the longevity of the Land Park Volunteer Corps has surprised even the longest running members, including Rick Stevenson who said, "Frankly, none of us thought (the volunteer parks corps) would last this long. The guy who has headed it up, Craig Powell, when started it we thought he was nuts. We thought it might work for five months. Everyone has been surprised. It's been picking up steam rather than petering out. People see results in the park. Some of the trails were so grown over that we didn't remember they were there. Things got exposed that people forgot about."

Stevenson stated that because of the wells on the property, water shortage has not been a problem even with the drought but that the problem has been with the water quality, adding that the head of utilities has told him that the water table is not dropping due to the proximity to the Sacramento River. Many of the trees were planted in the 1920s, Stevenson said, and have a lifespan of 80 to 100 years.

Duane Goosen, current interim gardener for WPA Rock Garden and Swanston gardens, said he submitted a list of trees to the Sacramento Tree Foundation, including live oaks cedars and conifer varieties and the foundation has agreed to donate some of these trees. He said plants at the rock garden have been suffering from burnt foliage. Goosen hopes to tie into the waterline that is being used by Fairytale Town that uses potable water. "If we are able to do that, we could improve the health of the trees."

Not all of the 66 trees have been removed yet, and Stevenson hopes that the volunteers are able to keep the mulch for surviving trees and trees they plant. "They're not all out yet. It's close. They were working on it. We wanted all the mulch for chips in the park because of the drought. So, we've been clamoring for mulch. We didn't want it exported to other parks. We're giving all the squirrels bb guns to guard the mulch."

Designated a "regional park", he said William Land Park receives less money per square foot than city parks. So, between now and March (when the next season for the volunteer corps begins) Stevenson said volunteers are looking to various foundations to get money for park maintenance funding.

City-owned Chicory Bend beach often a trashed-out area

editor@valcomnews.com

It's a beach where soft, white sand gets underneath the toes, dogs run free and boaters venture inland to enjoy. To some, it feels like a hidden secret – a beach that not many people know about; and some have wanted to keep that secret to themselves. So a gate was put up last month, only to be taken down by city staff days later.

Jointly owned by the City of Sacramento and the State Lands Commission, Chicory Bend is only publicly accessible by water. The property underlying the levees, which extends on either side of the park, is private property, and there is no public access on the levees. Private property includes the levee that extends from the intersection of 35th Avenue and Riverside Boulevard to Chicory Bend Park. Without the individual property owner's permission, people accessing Chicory Bend Park using the levee are considered trespassing.

"The gated vehicle access ramp located at the end of Seamas is locked, and there is no public access to the park from this point. In order to develop public access from the end of Seamas, capital improvements would need to include the addition of a pedestrian gate, trail construction and signage, at a minimum. Such improvements are not financially feasible," Maria C. "Marycon" Razo, media and communications specialist for the City of Sacramento, Office of the City Manager, told the Land Park News.

Chicory Bend Park was acquired in 1998 as part of a settlement agreement between the former owners, City of Sacramento and State Lands Commission. Purchase price was $1.1 million with city and SLC each contributing, $550,000 equally, the property under SLC ownership, and the city is responsible for its management via a 49-year lease agreement with the SLC.

For the past 10 to 15 years (maybe more), Michael Derrick, assistant cross country coach at John F. Kennedy High School, has been coming out to the area and has seen wild turkeys, owls, beavers and even a fox. "This is, or was, a lovely wildlife area ... It was an urban jewel," he says as he's giving an impromptu tour, pointing out spots along the way where homeless have camped and left mounds of trash and where people have been leaving cat food for ferals. "Now it's continued to be trashed out. It's a sad story."

He says it's just in the last two years that the area has gotten out of control with litter. Gracious to property owners for allowing him to walk his dog along the levee, he says there should be more effort on the city's part to help clean the area. "Property owners – I am gracious to them, but the city has not done the constant sweeping to clean the area. It's a shame the city has let it get this bad. The city has said it's your problem. It's your land."

Cleaning up the area would require tough law enforcement and clean-up effort, he says. "It's a major, major job." For those who boat in and

Chicory Bend:

party on the beach, there's no place for them to dispose of their trash. "You should bring back what you take in, but perhaps they could put a small dumpster toward the back of the beach that could be collected, assuming people would use trash cans. You can't assume one time in four months (of patrolling the area) is enough. Is it possible to hire security guards? Lack of resources is always the mantra, but I think this is a real shame what has happened to this area."

In response to the call for city staff to help clean up Chicory Bend, Razo explained, "Chicory Bend Park is a city owned natural open space, and is not considered a developed park; there are no trash cans for regularly pick-up, nor funding available through Measure U for increased maintenance. The city's maintenance staff monitors, cleans, and inspects the area three times a year, and will come out to address complaints of illegal dumping."

"Without the individual property owner's permission, people accessing Chicory Bend Park using the levee may be cited for trespassing if the person refuses to leave when a police officer requests them to leave the area. Under those circumstances, if the District Attorney decides to prosecute the violation, it is a misdemeanor and the fine can be as much as $1,000."

Back in the game:

Joe Marty's set to reopen in December with help from your neighbors

Three years ago, Land Park residents Devon Atlee and Jack Morris sat around their friend Tom Walcott's house, watching the San Francisco Giants. Half way through the game they started talking about Joe Marty's and what a shame it was that the bar had been sitting empty since the fire in 2005 and that no one had stepped up to get it going again. They all agreed that Joe Marty's would make for an ideal neighborhood hangout. By the end of the game, they had decided that "someone" would be them.

The two friends started the negotiations on the lease, trademarked the iconic Joe Marty's name and after three years of hard work they are set to open in December. Morris, emphasized the historical importance of bringing back memories of a bygone baseball era and what the reopening would mean to the neighborhood.

"It's a landmark in Sacramento and wouldn't it be cool to have Joe Marty's back and make it new? We chatted with our neighbors who all want a place like Joe Marty's, a place that everybody knows your name, kinda like Cheers. East Sac and midtown have that place, Land Park needs one," said Morris.

Located at 1500 Broadway, the space was an empty shell when Jack and Devon first saw the space three years ago. After several hurdles with lease negotiations, Joe Marty's is looking great. "When we first went in, it was somewhat gutted. They redid the storefront in 2007. There was no electrical, no plumbing. We had to start from scratch. The neat thing is that all the ceilings are gone. What was left was beautiful high ceilings and tresses, which makes it aesthetically cool for a bar," Devon said.

Kelly Ariza, who previously owned and managed Crawdads Cantina on the Sacramento River before she sold it two years ago, has been hired as general manager. She too, has strong ties to Land Park with both of her children attending neighborhood schools and is excited to bring Joe Marty's back to life.

She is currently hiring bartenders, cooks and servers to join their staff. Much of the hiring has been done with people from the neighborhood. "Our contractor is Tom Jones. He is vice president of Hilbers Inc. Our decorator, Karen Messing, lives in Land Park. Investors all live in Land Park. It's a neighborhood thing. Scott and Marika Rose are helping with marketing. They also live in Land Park," continued Morris.

Scott Leyseth, who is well known as the Sporting Chef, a longtime friend, has helped with the menu. Because of the small kitchen, basic pub fare will be the food of choice with two or three nice salads. They will also make use of the barbecue smokers. The bar and the food will be served opposite eight big television screens located throughout the bar and grille so there is never a moment away from the action.

Asked if they have any memories of the old Joe Marty's, both Jack and Devon remembered the bar as, "...the place to go for the final, final." First Melarkey's for a show and then Joe Marty's to end the night. Devon and Jack's friendship goes back years and years when Jack and his family moved to the neighborhood 15 years ago. According to Jack, "I met (Devon) when I was moving into the neighborhood he drove up and asked, 'Do you need help moving stuff in?'" And they've been friends and neighbors ever since.

Devon has loved the game of baseball since he was a kid. The third of four boys, Devon played ball with his brothers in the 1970s, first for the Land Park Pacific Little League. "Dad coached us. We all had to play ball," said Devon.

A ball player for John F. Kennedy High School (class of '81), Devon next played with his brother for the American Legion team, making it to the World Series.

Earlier this year, the Land Park News spoke with sign preservation aficionado, Gretchen Steinberg of South Land Park who explained how the Joe Marty's sign was to be preserved. Back then, she said, "Tower Theatre's neon sign is a historically protected sign as it is attached to a historic building. And everything on that building is protected, all the signs on that building. The neon, the dancing kids, and Joe Marty's, but protection is rare and we are hoping to get more protections on the local level by getting them deemed historic. It's tricky because there's no precedent in getting signs deemed historic." Fortunately the sign survived the fire that happened about 10 years ago.

According to an article in this publication by historian Lance Armstrong, the bar's namesake, Joe Marty's, comes from the Sacramento native and a product of Christian Brothers High School who enjoyed success as a Solons player for seven seasons, including the 1950 season when he held the role of player-manager, and as a businessman who operated his bar, Joe Marty's. Marty passed away on Oct. 4, 1984. According to Armstrong's article, Marty was born Joseph Anton Marty on Sept. 1, 1913. He received a three-sport scholarship in baseball, football and basketball from St. Mary's College of California, where he studied and played sports in 1932 and 1933. Armstrong also reported that in 1934, the San Francisco Seals, A Double-A minor league baseball team of the Pacific Coast League, acquired the rights to the then-20-year-old Marty. Marty's third season with the Seals, a Double-A minor league baseball team of the Pacific Coast League, acquired the rights to the then 20-year-old Marty.

"Marty's third season with the Seals was so successful that he attracted the attention of major league teams through such statistics as a league best .359 batting average, 215 hits, and 17 home runs. His five seasons in the majors included World Series appearances, one of which occurred in an Oct. 8, 1938 game, in which he became the first Sacramento native to hit a home run in a World Series game," the article continued.

Without any formal advertising, Joe Marty's has attracted more than 1,000 likes on its Facebook and have been providing fans with updates and even polls, such as the ever popular beer poll. The most recent post asked followers to help identify the beer selection - "What beers would you like to see on tap at the NEW Joe Marty's??" — you can imagine the range of answers.

Some of the answers including the following responses: Bob Erndt said, "Sierra Nevada Pale Ale and Sudwerk Helles Dry Hop Lager. Yes, a good local, every changing sample of local breweries would be great."

Andy Pfeffer said at least one nice stout or porter. "New Helvetia, Oak Park Brewery and New Glory all have great options!"

The new Joe Marty's will be a great place to meet your friends, enjoy a ball game and put a smile on your face.

Land Park real estate agents collected more than 1,100 coats last month

The agents and staff of the Lyon Real Estate’s Land Park/Curtis Park office collected more than 1,100 coats during the month of October, adding to a grand company total of an impressive 8,803 collected this year.

Lyon’s Annual Sacramento Coat Drive allows the local communities in our four-county region to get involved, and they are only too happy to help. Agents pick up donations from neighbors or neighbors drop off their coats at one of the 17 locations. Also, local businesses such as Gunther’s Ice Cream not only help spread the word, but also act as drop-off points for regular customers.

“Our communities are what makes us successful, and enables us to reach those who most need the help, Sarah Fithian, Manager of Gunther’s Ice Cream said. “To work with our neighbors and customers to help keep 8,000 people warm this year just makes us more proud to be in Curtis Park.”

The Land Park/Curtis Park Lyon office was able to collect more than 1,100 coats and jackets which were donated to the Sacramento Food Bank. Sacramento has a homeless population of close to 3,000 men, women and children, reported by the Sacramento Bee.

“It’s really never too late to donate, especially since we are just getting into the cold season, said Michael Canton, Lyon Realtor for the LP/CP office and coat drive coordinator. “We all have those coats that we haven’t worn in a few years!”

If you would like to help by donating to the Lyon Sacramento Coat Drive, call Michael at 916-952-4965 or email: mcanton@golygon.com

Sony, via the union of Columbia Pictures and Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer give us "Spectre". This is the 24th movie in the James Bond franchise of films, or 26th if you include "Casino Royale" and "Never Say Never Again". Daniel Craig is 007 for the fourth time. The criminal organization of SPECTRE returns from the other stories featured in past Bond pictures. The letters of SPECTRE signify Special Executive for Counter-intelligence, Terrorism, Revenge and Extortion.

Director Sam Mendes is back from the previous Bond picture, "Skyfall", and cinematographer Hoyte Van Hoytema lights the classic Bond look in a way that will please fans. This movie was shot entirely digitally. Just as in the shift from film to digital, the story centers around the push to eliminate real members of Her Majesty's Secret Service in favor of digital surveillance with technology. Plans are in the works to tie all nations security systems into one general surveillance service. Actor Andrew Scott plays "C", the instigator of this new order of watchfulness. Early in the picture "C" breaks the news to "M", played by the always elegant Ralph Fiennes, that his days and that of the 00 agents are at an end. You may well imagine how that goes over.

This seems not to affect our hero Bond, James Bond, who we first see on a mission of his own in Mexico City, during the pagentry of Dia de los Muertos as he tracks a killer with links to SPECTRE. Following a spectacular building destruction, huge crowd scenes of the costumed revelers, and some fine helicopter acrobatics, Bond gets his man, only to find that it turns out to be a lead to Rome.

Don't all roads lead to Rome? Bond is witness to a secret international meeting of the all powerful SPECTRE, the Illuminati of international crime world, but is singled out in the room by this movie's top villain, Herr Oberhauser, played with calmness by Christoph Waltz. With clever and typical derring-do, Bond wiggles his way out and makes his sudden departure in the pride and joy of the Aston-Martin firm of motor makers; a car just for Bond, the Aston Martin DB 10, of which only 10 cars were made.

Bond now must find Oberhauser, for he suspects a connection between his nefarious plans and that of "C" back at MI6. Of course, his adventures lead him past many faces (and more) of beautiful women, beginning in Rome, then eventually Austria where he finds Madeleine Swann, played by lovely Léa Seydoux.

On board the Orient Express, Bond and Swann move from the wagon-lit to the dining car where we see a moment of calm before a typical Bond movie interruption; This movie's tough henchman, Hinks, played by Dave Bautista, who you may remember from "Guardians of the Galaxy", attacks Bond relentlessly, channeling "Oddjob" from "Goldfinger". There's a nice tip of the hat in this scene to a moment in "Jaws", but with similar shaped objects all in a row being pulled overboard (or in this case, off the railroad car) one by one. It just might spell Hink's demise, but you'll have to see it to find out.

With all of the great expense lavished on each of the Bond movies, and this is no exception, you'd think we'd have a hit on our hands. The fantastic photography, stunts and beautiful international settings don't bring this 007 to life. This movie falls flat. The story wanders lightly from one event to the next. The characters are not developed to the point where you want to hate them or like them.

The only exception, where the movie has some lightness deftly handled, are the scenes featuring actor Ben Wishaw as "Q", a role he recreates from the last Bond release, "Skyfall". As the nerdy MI6 gadget guy who has dependent cats, he offers some charm in a movie that is slick without substance. We don't even get the cleverly named Ian Fleming type Bond girls, aside from Miss Money Penny.

The best line of the movie comes from Oberhauser as he tells of the many women in Bond's life by saying "a long line of pretty faces on your way to death" I'll paraphrase that and say: after a long line of excellent 007 movies, this one dies an unfortunate death. Perhaps they should not have started the picture with "Dia de los Muertos". I was shaken, not stirred by this Bond offering. Too bad, they can be so fun! In IMAX and standard screenings throughout the nation.

Faces and Places: Star Wars Reads Day at Belle Cooleedge

Photos by MONICA STARK

Sacramento Public Library took part in Star Wars Reads Day, an internationally celebrated day with events at five of its libraries on Saturday, Oct. 10. Kids came in full costume and some wore their favorite gear. Some stuck around to create out-of-this-world crafts, including unique spaceships. All the while, scenes from one of the Star Wars movies played. Special appearances by characters of the beloved film appeared at three of the locations, including Belle Cooleedge Library, which is where these photos were taken. Free Star Wars books were available for attendees.

In other library news, save 50 percent on Black Friday on "gently used" books, videos and audio books at the book den store of the Friends of the Sacramento Public Library and get a $5 gift certificate any purchase of $25 or more from the store. The discount applies to all but children's books, which will be discounted at 20 percent.

The Book Den is at Suite E, 8250 Belvedere Ave., just south of 14th Avenue between Power Inn and Florin-Perkins roads. Plenty of parking is available, but visitors should be careful not to park between the "No Parking" signs on the south side of Belvedere. Store hours will be from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m.

Income from the sale helps pay for programs, equipment, and materials local libraries need but can't afford. For more information, call (916) 731-8493 or go to book-den@saclibfriends.org.

Longtime Cal basketball coach, Isaac Richard, or Mr. Cal, received this plaque.

California Middle School cuts the ribbon on $3.1 million expanded gym

California Middle School's newly renovated and expanded gym was officially opened during a high-energy pep rally with students and staff on Tuesday.

The event featured a three-point basketball shoot-out, cheerleaders, a school orchestra rendition of Cal's fight song and a light-hearted routine by the school's Land Park Rangers troupe.

"This beautifully expanded structure builds on Cal's great tradition of excellence and moves it into the 21st century," said Superintendent José L. Banda.

Other speakers included Principal Andrea Egan, Board of Education Vice President Jay Hansen and Rosemont Principal Elizabeth Vigil.

Cal's gym, which was built in 1975, was overdue for modernization and expansion to accommodate the popular Land Park middle's schools growing needs. Improvements include:

- 2,500-square feet of additional space
- New lighting
- A new energy-efficient HVAC system
- A new wood floor
- A new wireless scoreboard
- Locker rooms, restrooms and office areas were also modernized with ADA-compliant upgrades.

The $3.1 million project is funded by Measure R bonds. Sacramento voters approved Measures Q and R – facilities bonds for Sac City schools – in November 2012. One of the oldest and most beautiful campuses in Sacramento, California Middle School is home to the league-winning California Bears soccer and softball teams.

At the ceremony, Principal Vigil presented a plaque to longtime Cal basketball coach Isaac Ricard, better known as "Mr. Cal."

Non-Profit Organization is Seeking Local Host Families for High School Exchange Students

ASSE International Student Exchange Programs (ASSE), in cooperation with your community high school, is looking for local families to host boys and girls between the ages of 15 to 18 from a variety of countries: Norway, Denmark, Spain, Italy, Japan, to name a few. ASSE students are enthusiastic and excited to experience American culture while they practice their English. They also love to share their own culture and language with their host families. Host families welcome these students into their family, not as a guest, but as a family member, giving everyone involved a rich cultural experience. The exchange students have pocket money for personal expenses and full health, accident and liability insurance. ASSE students are selected based on academics and personality, and host families can choose their student from a wide variety of backgrounds, countries and personal interests. To become an ASSE Host Family or to find out how to become involved with ASSE in your community please call 1-800-733-2773 or go to www.host.asse.com to begin your host family application. Students are eager to learn about their American host family, so begin the process of welcoming your new son or daughter today!
