Community gathers together to 'adopt' 18 families

In December, Councilmember Darrell Fong, the Sacramento chapter of the Asian Real Estate Association of America, Umpqua Bank, North American Title, The Buddhist Church of Sacramento, RE/Max Gold Laguna, and others sponsored 18 families as part of the Adopt-A-Family program, including five at My Sisters House Shelter. Working with the principal at Susan B. Anthony, they were able to identify families who were probably not going to be able to celebrate the holidays this year. Individuals took photographs highlighting some of the great families and volunteers who helped make this day possible. Randall Hom helped organize the event this year.

Pocket resident is deemed a 'shining star' for healthy living

Jerry Chang, 90, to be honored at first SHINE self-wellness expo

By MONICA STARK
editor@valcomnews.com

The list of accomplishments of Pocket resident Jerry Chang, 90, seems endless. Happily married for 60-plus years to wife Alice, Chang is a retired civic engineer and former earthquake commissioner for the state of California. The Chang's five daughters each have good jobs of their own. Active in the community, Chang organized the Sacramento Mentoring Club.

But it's his healthy lifestyle of exercising two hours a day and eating a nutritional diet, that has inspired his neighbor, Evette Tsang, to nominate him as a "shining star" for healthy living at the first ever SHINE Self-Wellness Expo to be held on Saturday, Jan. 26 at the George Sim Community Center from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m.

The idea that healthy living is everybody's dream led Tsang and others to focus on regular people's exercise routines and healthy eating while recognizing people like Chang who live the dream.

"He has all the symbols of a healthy, productive, long life," Tsang said.

Coupled with exercise and healthy living, Tsang said the Chang family is very community oriented, are generous, and "have a good attitude."

A breast cancer survivor and also an insurance agent, Tsang, 43, is keen on health care reform, but looks to Chang for health tips. Tsang said Chang is "knowledgeable about healthy stuff." She said he has a huge binder full of health articles. "It's how he learns," she said, noting that he has healthy eating tips such as the importance of having a varied diet. "They eat a little bit of something everyday," she said. Over at his house, Tsang admires how they organize their seeds and nuts in jars on the kitchen counter so they could grab a few everyday.

Supported by Councilmember Kevin McCarty, local medical doctor association, private businesses, and community agencies, the SHINE expo will showcase on stage exercise routines, provide free exercise lessons, free special doctor consultations, medical consultations and discounted flu shots by Rite Aid. Soil Born Farms will organize fruit harvesting and bring some of the fruit to the health expo.

It will also provide exercise and healthy eating tips by local experts and health care reform information. One of the goals of the event is to promote self-care. "While we don't know what is going to happen with health care reform, it's an individual and community responsibility to do your best."

The George Sim Community Center is located at 6207 Logan St., Sacramento.

Pocket resident reunites with daughter after 46-year separation

By LANCE ARMSTRONG
Lance@valcomnews.com

As many people exchanged gifts this past holiday season, Pocket resident Sheron (Bruner) Vollstedt knew that she had already received her greatest gift six months earlier.

Sheron, who was raised in Sacramento, was reunited with her daughter who she gave up for adoption as a newborn baby in 1966.

Last week, Sheron met with this publication to share details about her reunion with her daughter and other details about her life.

Six months after her June graduation from C.K. McClatchy High School, Sheron began working for the Freepoint-Wentworth branch of Bank of America at 4740 Freepoint Blvd.

Unlike today's banks, where people wait in a single, central line for the next available teller, during the 1960s, bank customers would typically wait in separate, individual lines designated for each particular teller.

Sheron said one of the regular customers in her line was a man named Jim Reed.

"(Reed) pursued me," Sheron said. "I went out one day and found a note on the door handle of my little MG Midget and he was asking me to go to dinner. I fell in love (with Reed) right from the beginning. I don't know, I guess it was eight or nine months later that I found out I was pregnant. He didn't want to marry me and I wanted to keep the baby, but my parents (Morrison and Leone Bruner) thought it was best — they worked for an adoption agency as volunteers — that I give her up for adoption."

After opting to take her parents' advice on the matter, Sheron headed to Connecticut to be with her older sister, who was also expecting a child and whose husband was being transferred with the Navy.

Pocket resident Sheron Vollstadt, left, and Alecia Ghilarducci share a moment together last June. The biological mother and daughter had been separated for 46 years.

Sheron said that while traveling to Connecticut, she stopped in Lombard, Ill. at the residence of her brother-in-law's parents, Cliff and LoRayne Lenz.

"(The Lenzes) invited me to come and stay with them, if I didn't want to stay in Connecticut, so I did. Their youngest daughter had gotten pregnant at 17, so they had already gone through a lot of the things that I was facing, trying to find a doctor and an attorney and an adoption agency. So, they arranged everything. They were my surrogate parents. They took me all over sightseeing and they were absolutely wonderful, wonderful people."

Sheron fondly remembers the kindness that LoRayne showed when she took her to the hospital for the birth of her daughter and stayed with her through the night. Another detail of this time that Sheron recalled was the discussion that took place in regard to a religious oriented request.

"I was asked permission if it was okay to give up my child to a Catholic couple that couldn't have children," Sheron said. "Since I was Protestant, they needed my approval, and I said, 'Yes, that is fine.' I just wanted her to be adopted by a loving couple."

After Sheron gave birth to her daughter on July 24, 1966, the hospital's workers kept the baby from her sight and were hesitant in even telling her whether the child was a boy or a girl.

In recalling that moment, Sheron said, "They watched me like a hawk. I couldn't even go down the hall, because I might see the baby in the nursery. It was just really, really tough. I remember being very, very sad to have given up a child."

Sheron, who returned to Sacramento in August 1966, eventually got married and had a son and daughter, which she raised.

Nonetheless, she always wondered about her child she gave away and referred to her birthday as "the un-birthday — the birthday I never got to celebrate."

Although Sheron eventually desired to search for her daughter, she explained why she spent many years avoiding such a search.

"I felt I gave somebody a gift and you don't take gifts back," Sheron said. "Until the new technology, it was difficult to do any searching anyway."

Reunion: Technology made reunion possible

In 2001, Sheron made an attempt to locate her daughter. But because she had forgotten various pertinent details relating to this birth, she hit a dead end in that search.

These details included the name of the hospital, the time of the birth and the weight of the baby.

A year ago this month, Sheron was contacted by a young woman who wondered if Sheron was her birth mother.

Sheron said that both the woman who contacted her and herself experienced disappointment after learning that Sheron was not this inquirer's mother.

But Sheron said that only about six months passed before she was once again contacted with the same inquiry.

"I opened up my Facebook account and there was a 'friend request' from Alecia Ghilarducci," Sheron said. "I thought, 'I don't know anybody by the name of Alecia Ghilarducci. I'm going to delete it.' And then I thought, 'Well, it could be a friend of my daughter. I'll go in and look at (Alecia's) page.' And all I had to see on that page was Chicago, Ill. Anyway, while I'm looking at her page — and her picture is postage stamp sized — I said, 'Oh, could it be?' And then a comment popped up and it said, 'Are you Sheron Anne Bruner? Did you live in Chicago, Ill.' And I went, 'Oh, my God, it's her.'"

Sheron then replied with the message, "OMG (an often used abbreviation for 'Oh, my God')...yes."

Within about five minutes, Sheron had located Alecia's telephone number through the Internet and was calling her residence.

A moment later, Sheron had established a conversation with Alecia.

In recalling this earlier part of this conversation, Sheron said, "I asked her her birth date and I asked her what hospital. And as soon as she said, 'Gottlieb, I knew it!' And I asked her what time she was born and she said, '6:36 in the morning.' And I had forgotten that. I thought she was born at night, but I had gone through the whole night in labor. I remember when she said that that I had to wait a couple hours to call my parents (to give them the news) until it was a decent time in Sacramento."

In speaking to Alecia, who resides with her husband, Mark, and their family in Menifee, Calif., Sheron learned that the number of her grandchildren had doubled from four to eight.

Following this conversation, in which Sheron shed many tears of joy, Sheron and Alecia communicated via e-mail and then met this past June 19 in Fresno.

After this positive initial reunion, on July 25, Alecia, Mark and two of their children, Marisa and Adam, came to Sacramento, where they met Alecia's biological grandfather, Morrison.

Sheron continues to keep in touch with Alecia and her family and plans to visit them in Southern California next month.

Post office clerk still bringing smiles to the community

By LANCE ARMSTRONG
Lance@valcomnews.com

Many people in the Land Park and Pocket areas have fond memories of Sally Anderson, a clerk who worked for nearly a decade at the United States Postal Service's Land Park Station at 5930 South Land Park Drive.

But what many customers of that post office may not be aware of is that Anderson can still be found behind a post office counter bringing smiles to those who she serves.

After leaving Land Park Station 13 years ago, she has worked at the capital city's well known post office at 2000 Royal Oaks Drive.

But Anderson's post office career began long before her years at the Land Park Station post office.

In fact, Anderson, 84, was already a well established post office worker in 1971 – the year the United States Post Office Department was reorganized into the United States Postal Service.

Those who are most familiar with Anderson recognize her as a woman who displays a strong work ethic and a love for her job.

Anderson's positive attitude and joyful spirit was on full display last week as the post office was handling its busiest time of the year.

Anderson explained that like in years past, she recently enjoyed working at the post office during the holiday season.

"I love it, because people are mailing love," Anderson said. "That's what I like. When they come in and they're mailing something to somebody, I'm thinking they love someone they're mailing these things to and that's a joy to me."

Ralph Petty, customer relations coordinator for the Sacramento Post Office, said that during the holiday rush, USPS handles about a 20 percent increase in items being mailed.

After being asked to describe his appreciation for Anderson and her dedication to USPS, Petty said, "Sally is an ambassador for the post office. She's been around for a long time. She knows a lot of the history about Sacramento. She's able to reflect back on her early days when she worked for the postal service and she's given us a lot of information on the way things were and how we've advanced over the years. Sally is a very conscious person. She loves the history of the postal service and what it meant to the American people throughout the years. She's just an all around absolutely wonderful person."

Many readers of this article were not even living in Sacramento or, in some cases, even born when Anderson began working for the local post office.

In presenting the early part of her history with the post office, Anderson, who has resided in the same Greenhaven area house since 1972, said, "I've been with the postal service for 47 years. I started out, actually, down on 7th and K (streets). That was a (red sandstone) building that belonged to the postal service and they called it the Pink Panther. I was hired as part of 50 people who were sorting Department of Motor Vehicles mail. That was a time when they did that just once a year."

Anderson's next post office work was at the old post office building at 8th and I streets.

Eventually Anderson, who was hired under the classification of "temporary indefinite," was encouraged to take a post office test, so that she could become a regular full-time postal worker.

Although she was initially uncertain whether she wanted to continue working for the post office, Anderson said that she ultimately decided to pursue a long-term position because she figured $2.34 an hour was "pretty good."

"I took the (post office) test (in 1965) and two days later I got a call and they said, 'Please come in' and I've been here ever since," Anderson said.

Anderson continued to work at the 8th and I streets building while the Royal Oaks post office building was being constructed.

The Royal Oaks building was opened on May 8, 1966 and its carrier annex was added in the 1980s.

Among the first mail sorters at the Royal Oaks post office was Anderson, who alternated between the "Tour 3" 3 p.m. shift and the graveyard shift.

Anderson's next assignment at the Royal Oaks post office was sorting mail in an upstairs room.

She later worked at the same post office putting together mail that had fallen apart.

In speaking about this latter job, she said, "You hopefully get the right mail going in the right (packaging) or else people were going to be really surprised."

Anderson said that people have attempted to mail many odd things during her tenure with the Sacramento Post Office. Among these things were a baby alligator and a very odiferous item.

The latter item was initially quite disturbing to the post office's workers, Anderson explained.

"You could smell it and it smelled horrible," Anderson said. "About that time, we had heard that there was someone who had dismembered someone and (the package) was the size of a head. (The item turned out to be) a head of (rotting) cabbage."

After deliberating for a day shift, in 1974, Anderson was made a "pool clerk," which is a person who is trained to perform a variety of jobs and then rotated to different positions.

Through her work as a pool clerk, Anderson worked at many post offices in Sacramento and Yolo counties.

Eventually the pool clerk position was eliminated and Anderson was sent to the West Sacramento post office to sort mail.

As previously mentioned, Anderson's post office career included her employment at the Land Park Station, where she enjoyed working with the public for eight years.

But Anderson explained that she enjoys interacting with the public wherever she works.

"I do love my job," Anderson said. "I like to talk to people across the counter. I also like to try to get them to buy stamps that they are just going to put away."

Anderson, who is a long-time, avid stamp collector, believes that stamp collecting is a great way to learn history.

"People learn from (stamps)," Anderson said. "They learn history of this country and that's what's so important. I love my country, I make my money here and I spend it here."

And in being a traveler, Anderson takes opportunities to learn about America at the actual sites of historical happenings.

Thus far, she has visited 36 states, including two of her favorites, Alaska and Tennessee. While in Tennessee, she visited Elvis Presley's beloved Graceland Mansion.

Anderson said that Presley played a strong role in USPS history, through his post-mortem connection to what she referred to as the "stamp explosion."

"When the Elvis stamp came out (in 1993), we made more money on that stamp than we've ever made on any other stamp," Anderson said. "People would buy whole pads, which are 2,000 stamps each and just put them under their beds or in their closets and stuff."

Anderson, who has two daughters, four grandchildren and one grandchild, made sure she purchased plenty of Elvis stamps and is continuously purchasing other stamps to add to her very large collection.

After nearly a half-century as a postal worker, Anderson said that she has no plans for retirement.

In speaking about her continued pleasure of coming to work each day, Anderson said, "It's been a very fun life working for the postal service. People are constantly saying, 'When are you going to retire?' And I say, 'Whenever I get around to it.'"

John F Kennedy's 25th annual Holiday/Staff appreciation breakfast

By KEVIN CHAN
JFK Chinese Culture Club President

On Dec. 21, John F Kennedy high school held its 25th annual teacher and staff appreciation breakfast. This event could not have been done without the support of the parents and the students.

We were able to show the staffs the true spirit of the holidays though this breakfast. With plenty of food including but not limited to: spam sushi, fried rice, rice balls, chow mein, croissants, muffins, bagels, spring rolls and much more festive.

Music sounded all around the room whether it was JFK's Orchestra instructed by Mr. Hammond or the children singing Christmas carols, this was an extremely successful event. We asked the kids what they thought of this event and had great responses.

Brydon Pompei describes this event as "joyful and full of spirit." He said this breakfast allowed him to really meet and connect with the staff members of the school.

We would like to thank all of the parent volunteers for their generous donations and we would also like to give a special thanks to Starbucks for providing us with coffee and hot cocoa.

Also a special thanks to Mr. Sweitzer for supervising and SCUSD board member Darrel Wu for attending and experiencing this glorious spirit-filled event. The teachers and staff all look forward to next year's event, this event really brought happiness and joy to the school.

Chinese Culture Club President is Deion Sugianto and Chinese Culture Club Secretary is Nathan Yee.

Sacramento Soccer Alliance tryouts begin Jan. 19

Greenhaven area is home to 1,200 players, 230 coaches

In 2010 the leaders of the Greenhaven and Land Park Soccer Clubs joined forces and in partnership created the Sacramento Soccer Alliance (SSA). The collaboration was in response for the need to provide a higher level playing opportunity in "age pure" divisions for the two neighborhoods. Thus the SSA is now the Select level soccer program associated with Greenhaven and Land Park Soccer Clubs. SSA provides opportunities for players and coaches looking to take their game to a higher level without the high cost and time commitment required of a competitive club.

The sky blue and white program has grown from 22 teams in its inception to 34 age pure teams last year in all boys and girls age groups from U9 to U19. Teams play competitively in either the Cal North (CYSA) or NorCal Premier (US Club) leagues.

As the program enters its fourth year, the focus continues to be on player and coach development. New for the 2013 season, Sacramento Soccer Alliance is a member of the National Soccer Coaches Association of America (NSCAA) nationwide Club Standards Project. SSA is taking part in the NSCAA youth soccer evaluation process designed to raise the standards and expectations for coach and player development. Shane Singh, the President of the Greenhaven Soccer Club, remarked, "the children of Land Park and Greenhaven are very fortunate that the SSA was established to provide this level of soccer while still keeping the costs down."

In Sacramento youth soccer is by far the largest sport in terms of participation numbers, Singh said. For Greenhaven soccer alone, we have over 1,200 players, about 230 registered coaches in 110 teams and use 29 different sites."

Also new in 2013 is a training partnership with Coerver Coaching to provide club technical trainings and an inaugural Coerver Camp. Coerver Coaching California Northeast will be running bi-weekly club technical sessions from June to August and running a Coerver Camp in late June. Coerver Coaching is the recognized world leader in teaching soccer skills, is endorsed and recommended by top soccer federations, associations, clubs, and players. Singh added, "In 2012, several SSA teams in the younger age groups fared very well in playing leagues against local Competitive level soccer clubs."

Tryouts begin with the U9 - U11 players on January 19 and 26. Tryout information and online registration can be found on the SSA web site at sacramentosocceralliance.com. Tryout information for older players will be posted on the SSA web site as it becomes available. SSA is open to players and coaches from all areas of Sacramento. Prospective coaches can also find more information about the club and application process on the SSA web site.

Profile of Ombudsman Services of Northern California

Ombudsman Services of Northern California is a state and federally mandated advocacy program. The Older Americans Act and the Older Californians Act authorize Ombudsmen to advocate and protect residents in long-term care (LTC) facilities, including skilled nursing facilities and residential care facilities for the elderly. In California, the Ombudsman Program is housed within the California Department of Aging and has a governor-appointed State LTC Ombudsman. Legal Services of Northern California serves as the umbrella agency for this 13-county non-profit program.

Ombudsmen identify, investigate and resolve complaints on behalf of the residents in the facilities. Complaints vary from resident's rights dealing with food issues to substantive physical abuse and neglect cases. Ombudsmen are also mandated to witness Advance Health Care Directives for residents in skilled nursing facilities.

Ombudsmen become certified, by the California Department of Aging, upon successful completion of over 40 hours of class-room training and a subsequent internship. The upcoming training will be held in the West Sacramento office and a background clearance will be required. There are 10 training days, scheduled in February. Two of the training days will be in the field, visiting facilities. The other 8 days are from 9:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m.

The volunteer position is not a good match for those who are employed full-time; however, part-time employees are encouraged to apply. Ombudsmen must also have access to a computer, printer and knowledgeable use of the internet. Documentation of activity is a critical requirement of the monthly reports. The program requires a minimum of 20 hours per month which includes complaint investigations, facility monitoring, monthly regional meetings, drive and report write-up time.

Volunteer Ombudsmen must be available to respond to complaints that are generated from the resident or other interested persons in their assigned facilities. Volunteer Ombudsmen must have reliable transportation and valid car insurance.

This training will be for Sacramento, Yolo, Yuba/Sutter and Placer Counties.

All training will be held at: Ombudsman Services of Northern California – Central Office located at:

3950 Industrial Boulevard, Suite 500, West Sacramento, CA 95691

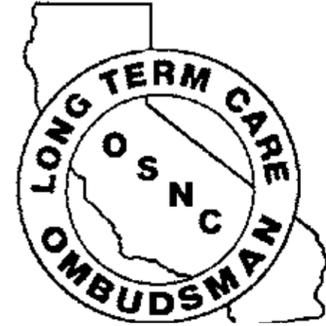

Gas mileage will be reimbursed upon successful completion of the Internship training at $.41 per mile.

There is a $25 non-refundable fee for training materials, which will be due on the 1st day of class. This fee may be paid by check or money order. Please make your payment to:
